

HIRING MANAGER FLOWCHART

Key points:

Open job requisition graph:

- it is a visual representation of job openings within an organization that are available for candidates to apply. It typically includes information such as the job title, location, and requirements, as well as the status of the job opening, such as whether it is open, closed, or in the process of being filled. The graph is designed to help recruiters and hiring managers track job openings and manage the hiring process more efficiently.

Top vacancies open:

- it refers to the most important or high-priority job positions within an organization that are currently availabe for candidates to apply

Average compensation graph:

- it is a visual representation of the average pay or salary of employees within an organization. It typically shows the average compensation for different job titles or levels within the organization, as well as any variations in compensation based on factors such as location or experience.

Average percentage of benefits offered:

- it reveal the important benefits of employees in terms of market analysis

Average percentage of benefits offered:

- it reveal the important benefits of employees in terms of market analysis

Possible employee departure:

- it refers to the situation where an employee may leave an organization for various reasons, such as seeking better opportunities, dissatisfaction with their job, or personal reasons. This situation is a potential risk for an organization. This feature will predict the possibility of an employee departure

Substantial cost for finding new employees:

- it refers to the expenses associated with recruiting and hiring new staff for an organization. This feature will predict when should hire an employee also can show the compensation package based on job requirements and skills